Reasons for allowance

The following is a statement of reasons for allowance:

Upon consideration, the inclusion of the claimed inkjet chip, as claimed in the combination, is not found in the prior art. This difference is considered patentable over the prior art and reflects an improvement in the field of endeavor since the following apparatus and method claim limitations reflect an improvement in the field of endeavor and over the prior art of record.

The Examiner has conducted an exhaustive updated search but has found no prior art to indicate this invention is neither novel nor non-obvious.

The primary reasons for allowance is the following claimed combination is not found in the prior art of record:

1. An inkjet printhead chip that comprises a substrate that incorporates drive circuitry;
a plurality of nozzle arrangements that are positioned on the substrate, each nozzle arrangement comprising:
a nozzle chamber wall and a roof wall positioned on the substrate to define a nozzle chamber, the roof wall defining an ink ejection port in fluid communication with the nozzle chamber; an ink ejection member that is positioned in the nozzle chamber and is displaceable towards and away from the ink ejection port to eject ink from the ink ejection port; and an elongate actuator that is fast, at one end, to the substrate to receive an electrical signal from the drive circuitry and fast, at an opposite end, with the ink ejection member, the actuator incorporating a heating circuit that is connected to the drive circuitry layer the heating circuit being positioned and configured so that, on receipt of, and termination of, a suitable electrical drive signal from the drive circuitry layer, the heating circuit serves to generate differential thermal expansion and contraction, respectively, such that the actuator is displaced to drive the ink ejection member towards and away from the ink ejection port wherein the drive circuitry is configured to generate a heating signal which is sufficient to heat the actuator, without generating movement, to an extent such that the ink is heated, prior to generating the drive signal.

While Silverbrook (US 20030020786A1) teaches a similar invention (see page 8, paragraph 0233), this reference teaches the actuators are preheated "above" a temperature of operation. Contrarily, the claims are directed to preheating an actuator to a sufficient temperature without generating movement. Hence, the base claim is deemed to be allowed. The dependent claims are allowed since they depend from an allowed base claim.

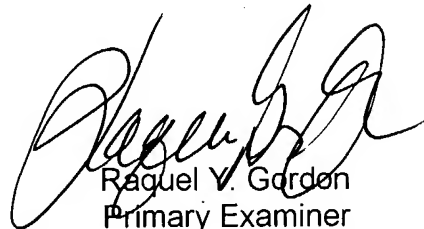

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
